SEMINAR TOPICS

Knowing God in the Bible: an overview

Have you been going to church for years, but still struggle to see how the parts of the Bible connect? This seminar will give an overview of what theologians call 'salvation history': how the Bible fits together, and where we fit in.

Pastoral care through better listening

It is easy to be at church for years, yet still to feel alone. In this seminar we will experiment with some tips and tactics for the kind of focussed, understanding listening that builds close, caring relationships.

Laughing at the future: a look at ageing well

The Bible strongly affirms our later life and gives many clues in how to do it well. This seminar will buck the trend that says only youth is good, and offer some Christian clues on being older.

Jungles and gardens: running churches better together

Local churches are notoriously hard to run well! This seminar will look at what makes churches 'creaturely', not only 'spiritual', and overview church admin and 'governance'. While we can never make any church perfect, we can each contribute to making them less like jungles and more like gardens. (This seminar will borrow from Anglican examples.)
